It is with great sadness that I share the following news with you:

Carla Himes, known to many of you as adult fim star Eartha Quake, passed away Monday in Hemet, California. Initial reports from family members suggest complications during the fifth month of her second pregnancy in two years. Carla underwent weight-loss surgery in 1996 and recently had experienced health problems involving her spleen and iron retention. An autopsy will be performed to determine the exact cause of death.

As supersized supervixen Eartha Quake, she starred in several well-known titles, including "Much More To Love" and "When The Fat Lady Sings". Fans were enthralled with her bountiful proportions and exotic looks.

Carla and I met during the filming of "Much More To Love", and remained good friends long after that. We had lost touch in the last 18 months (she moved out of the area), but never failed to keep up on each other through mutual friends. Her sweet, gentle nature and beautiful countenance will be what I remember most about her. I'm sure I speak for her many appreciative fans and dear friends when I say she will be sorely missed.
